INTRODUCTION

The Scottish Core Standards for Accredited Landlords (the Standards) provides a framework for setting and monitoring the achievement of good management practice by private landlords. The Standards reflect a combination of current legislation, good practice and common sense. They are designed to be reasonable, realistic and easy to implement. Landlords who already carry out good management practices will find themselves well on their way to achieving the Standards.

These standards follow the Scottish National Core Standards and Good Practice Guidance for Private Landlords developed by Communities Scotland in 2006 and subsequently endorsed by the Scottish Government following widespread consultation.

The Standards have been adopted as the framework for the accreditation of landlords by Landlord Accreditation Scotland and were updated in 2017 to reflect recent changes in legislation.

The Types of Standard

The Standards themselves are organised around eight categories:

1. Communication with the tenant;
2. Equality issues, complaints and disputes;
3. Management of the tenancy;
4. Repairing Standard;
5. Repairs and maintenance;
6. Facilities and fittings;
7. Heating, insulation and energy efficiency; and
8. Health, safety and home security features.

Guidance on the Standards

Most of the Standards are straightforward; relatively short statements of good practice. Generally, they have been framed as broad statements rather than described in great detail, although for some Standards, precision has been necessary and unavoidable.

Changes to Legislation

LAS will inform accredited landlords of new and revised legislation or guidance as it is published. Accredited landlords will be required to bring their management practices into line with legislation as part of compliance with the Standards.

SCOTTISH CORE STANDARDS FOR ACCREDITED LANDLORDS
